

The NEW ENGLAND JOURNAL of MEDICINE

A FACT SHEET

FOUNDED — In 1812, as the New England Journal of Medicine and Surgery and the Collateral Branches of Science; renamed the New England Journal of Medicine in 1928.

MISSION — To bring physicians the best research at the intersection of biomedical science and clinical practice, and to present the information in an understandable and clinically useful format.

DISTINCTIONS — The most widely read, cited, and influential general medical journal in the world, and the oldest continuously published medical periodical.

CIRCULATION — More than 600,000 readers in 177 countries each week.

EDITOR-IN-CHIEF — Dr. Jeffrey M. Drazen, Distinguished Parker B. Francis Professor of Medicine, Harvard Medical School.

ONLINE ACCESS — The Journal has been online at nejm.org since 1996. Free online access is available to 120 lower-income countries, and full text of research articles is free to all six months after publication.

READERSHIP — Three out of four readers are physicians in internal medicine or an internal medicine subspecialty. The Journal is also widely used in the education of physicians-in-training and medical students.

AUTHORS — More than half of the research reports submitted to the Journal originate from outside the U.S. Of the papers we publish, more than one-third originate from outside the U.S.

IMPACT FACTOR — The Journal's Science Citation Index rating was 52.589 in 2007, the highest among general medical journals. This is the number of all the citations in the two previous years of a journal's articles divided by the number of the journal's articles published in those two years.

FREQUENCY — The Journal is published weekly (52 times per year) on Thursdays.

RELEASE TIMES — Media subscribers can access the Journal online the Friday prior to publication and also can receive a print copy in advance. All content is made available online to subscribers Wednesdays at 5 p.m. Eastern time.

OWNERSHIP — The Journal has offices in Boston and Waltham, Massachusetts, and is owned and published by the Massachusetts Medical Society, a not-for-profit physician membership association.
